

What's new in Paris?

Atmosphères: the first gallery hotel opens its doors in Paris!

hotels "Atmosphere! Atmosphere! Do I look like an atmosphere kind of person?" says Arletty in the 1938 classic movie "Hôtel du Nord". To which you might reply "Well, I do!" when you discover this contemporary and sophisticated new luxury hotel of the same name (but with an S) where well-being and relaxation are the order of the day. Atmosphères is first and foremost an elegant "boutique hôtel" with 56 rooms including six junior suites and two apartments, divided into six themes: By Night (a Parisian night theme), Nature (a green zen paradise), Urban (dedicated to lovers of design), Macaron (for foodies), Monument (for architecture fans) and Palace. The first "hôtel galerie", its walls are decorated with 112 original prints of contemporary photographs by Thierry des Ouches immortalising the City of Light in all its glory. Atmosphères. 31, rue des Ecoles, 5th. This talented duo have a sixth sense for style, so expect everything from trench coats with stylish linings by André to linen ballerina shoes that make you wish Paris was built on sand, great jeans, sexy dresses and arty print shirts. These sharp-eyed buyers offer a chic, relaxed mix of brands and designs tucked away in the cobbled courtyard of the Madeleine Castaing mansion house, where you can also pick up a print by Andy Warhol or a poetic design by La Fratrie. ### Richard Mille's cufflink revolution design A designer of exceptional watches for over a decade, Richard Mille has pushed the innovation envelope even further. Drawing on the same design and development process as the brand's watches, these cufflinks – a technical work of art – are made from Grade 5 titanium, feature 38 components, and include an original and patented button-operated clip-opening system. Satin-finished, sand-blasted and hand-chamfered, they're utterly chic. We can't wait to see the diamond-encrusted version.
